In a 10-to-one vote, councillors voted in favour of ditching Australia Day fireworks out of sensitivity to Aborigines.	The Australian	2016-08-25
Dear "darwinist" racists, did any of you know that the Aborigines are objectively the most advanced race of humans? They lived in homeostasis with perfect environmental symbiosis (which noone else has achieved) for longer than any culture has ever survived. They maximised their technology, doing everything imaginable to master their environment. The only thing white people have done to Australia that aboriginals ARGUABLY could have is domesticate the macadamia nut. We're the degenerates, not them.	Tristan Barker	2016-09-01

I'm white and I couldn't care less if people paint themselves black, white etc.. If it's not intended to offend I don't see the harm..	5805	2016-08-29
Well done to this Aboriginal mum! I'm Aboriginal and I made it very clear last week that the little boy and his mum in no way were being racist! He wanted to be like his hero! And to Bec Bee I absolutely admire your response. You have shown to Australia that we as Aboriginal people are not all the same on this issue. We can come together and educate and converse in a respectful way. We want reconciliation. We want peace. Love to all. ☐	3314	2016-08-29
It's the adults that are the problem. I took my granddaughters to Southbank on the weekend and witnessed children of all races and colours, shapes and sizes talking in different languages all playing happily together alongside one another. Come on adults take notice of the kids.	3210	2016-08-29
Both kids look great! What a way to come together! Well played! ☐☐☐☐☐☐☐☐ Sometimes I wonder if our society has a race problem or if the media actually creates the problem.	1923	2016-08-29
White people don't care if you do whiteface we are not so uptight	1438	2016-08-30

This lady gets it. Good on her for standing up for equality and calling out the media's double standards.	1050	2016-08-29
Couldn't care less. Some people just go around looking for excuses to be offended by everything possible. More importantly we have to stop being "offended on someone else's behalf" and demanding something changes to stop it. There are people who go around looking for something they THINK some group, race, or religion SHOULD be offended by, and then start freaking out about it...even when the group themselves hasn't said a word. A prime examples are the way some people try to change things at Christmas time for fear "Christmas celebrations/decorations might offend Muslims", but when anyone bothers to ask, Muslims say they don't care about it and can't understand the fuss. Same with the "blackface child" thing...I didn't notice ABORIGINAL leaders coming out and complaining...it was just the media. Stop being offended on someone else's behalf.	590	2016-08-29
This story highlights how racist and intolerant our society is. The mother is very correct in regards to this country's double standards.	521	2016-08-29
It's just a shame that it has taken so long to get this far and that Aboriginal people have suffered such indignities. Let's go forward now.	498	2016-08-31
